Alphabet of Light by BIG

Artemide has always worked with leading Italian and international architects with whom cultural synergies and design partnerships have been created, human relationships that build a common path to innovation. An important new feature is the Funivia system, designed by Carlotta de Bevilacqua. Flexible and inclusive, it builds a network of light intelligences with which to go beyond the limits of space. Funivia is a perfect example of the sustainable approach to design, central to the company's values.

Artemide

Artemide increasingly explicitly declares its perspective towards the future: an approach to design guided by values, driven not only by scientific research and technological and production expertise but also by a humanistic and ethical approach.
Artemide has adopted a concrete path towards 360° sustainability, not only environmental but also social, as demonstrated by ISO 9001, ISO 14001 and ISO 45001 certification, membership of the United Nation Global Compact and the new sustainability report just published.
Through its Human & Responsible Light, Artemide makes it possible to rethink the environment in terms of the energy ecosystem, the perception of space, the experience of wellbeing and now, with INTEGRALIS® , also of human health for a better quality of life and to get back to being all together in safety.
